The Problem

Do you have a lot of roommates?
Do you have problems keeping track of expenses between your roommates?

We've all been there, trying to keep track of expenses between housemates or any group of people who share expenses. It is hard to keep a common list of items between groups of people in which everyone is responsible for buying items on the list. Some things may get bought twice or some items may not get bought at all. And then there is the awkward task of divvying up who owes who.

The Solution

ListNinja lets you create individual and household accounts to track expenses, such as shopping lists, shared bills, and much more. After setting up an account and creating your lists you and your household can track items paid for and how much how each person still owes or is owed. Take the worry out of calculating the division of expenses between household members and let ListNinja handle it for you and your housemates.
